Warm Weather Dresses.

"It is, indeed, a stupid and indolent woman who cannot have dainty, pretty dresses this season!" exclaimed a young woman, who was just putting the last stitches into a delicate organdy.

"Just think of it, here is this dress, it took fourteen yards of goods and I have spent two days' time on it, and it is pretty enough to wear anywhere. I have just finished a black organdy, and it is a beauty. The skirt is made with five straight widths and a deep hem. Above the hem is a ruffle sixteen inches deep with a hem three-fourths of an inch wide and a stirred standing heading. The waist is made with tucks the form of a yoke, and the lower part of the waist gathered into the round belt. The sleeves are very full at the shoulders, and as close to the lower arm as is comfortable. The collar and the front are trimmed with a finger wide plaiting of the goods, set on in jabot fashion. I wear with this dress a very long sash made of a full width of black India silk, tied in a very long, loose bow at the back. I don't like stumpy bows, they give one a humpbacked effect.

"There are lovely new fabrics in cotton, the most delicate 'see-through' muslins; and there is a charming material somewhat like the old fashioned barege, made up with ruffles bound with silk or ribbons. Such dresses are exceedingly pretty, and are useful for home or watering place wear, for morning or informal days.

"India silk dresses are made with demi-train, trimmed with lace ruffles, either set on plain or draped in festoons or following a scalloped or pointed pattern.

"A number of pretty costumes have been made with princess bodies, with the sides draped in panier fashion. One model has narrow fronts, draped over the side sections, and with the ends left long enough to tie in a very large sash bow, with ends falling almost to the hem of the skirt. Sash ends with lace or fringe are pretty, and one slender figure has a very long, wide sash drapery, with one edge elaborately trimmed with lace. This sash is drawn around the waist, the lace trimmed edge falling over the skirt of the dress. The ends are tied in a loose knot, and cover a large portion of the back of the dress. A shoulder drapery in similar fashion is knotted at the front, the ends falling below the waist line."—New York Ledger.

Bowling and Quoits for Women.

Bowling has come to be recognized as a standing attraction in the way of winter sport, and an excellent substitute is provided for summer use in the game of lawn bowls. A number of different sized black balls are provided, flattened at one side. These are numbered, and two light wooden balls are used in playing. This is very much like the original game of bowls which was played in olden times on the green, and is full of interest. A very large lawn is not required for the playground, and a great deal of interest is attached to the game. It is as simple as the game of tennis, and fully as fascinating for outdoor amusement.

Quoits have long been recognized as a good game among men, but there is no reason why it should not be popular with women, if the weights are not made too heavy. As a substitute for this, however, the game of ring toss has been provided. Rings formed of light materials are thrown at a series of pegs, each one possessing a different value. The game is made up by the person scoring the greatest number of points in a certain number of throws, and much accuracy is sometimes attained by the players.

Somewhat similar to this is pitchette. A large board is furnished, upon which are a series of pegs, each one bearing a number. This board is intended to stand upright, and rings are thrown at it from a certain distance so as to catch and hang upon one of the pegs. Much skill is called for in the playing of the game, and the first attempts are generally lamentable, which shows that there is more to the game than is imagined at first sight.—Harper's Bazar.

Have Worked for the Government.

A good many distinguished women have at different times been compelled to seek employment in the government service. Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas, the widow of the "Little Giant," reduced to poverty by her husband's unfortunate speculations, for a time held a clerkship in the treasury. During the lifetime of her husband she was a brilliant leader in society, and while in the treasury married an army officer of high standing. The daughter of a decayed Washington family was married from the treasury to a wealthy German baron. A niece of General John Sedgwick once held a place there.

Mrs. Commodore Wainwright, a descendant of Franklin, and two granddaughters of Jefferson have been clerks in the government service. Mrs. Attorney General Brewster was a clerk in the bureau of internal revenue in the treasury department, and Mr. Brewster, then a Philadelphia lawyer, occasionally came to see her when she was a clerk. She was the orphan daughter of Robert J. Walker, once secretary of the treasury. A female cousin of General Rawlins, formerly secretary of war, and a cousin of William H. Seward have held government clerkships.—Washington Cor. Boston Journal.

A change in the weather will often cause disagreeable spots upon the complexion in the summer. The remedy may often be found in simple cooling drinks.

John F. Jones, Edom, Tex., writes: I have used German Syrup for the past six years, for Sore Throat, Cough, Colds, Pains in the Chest and Lungs, and let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best.

B. W. Baldwin, Carnesville, Tenn., writes: I have used your German Syrup in my family, and find it the best medicine I ever tried for coughs and colds. I recommend it to everyone for these troubles.

R. Schmalhausen, Druggist, of Charleston, Ill., writes: After trying scores of prescriptions and preparations I had on my files and shelves, without relief for a very severe cold, which had settled on my lungs, I tried your German Syrup. It gave me immediate relief and a permanent cure.

That the silver question, which, despite the efforts of the goldites, forces itself to the front in every State Convention, will result in a new alignment of political parties in the approaching Presidential election, can scarcely be doubted. There seems to be but one thing that will prevent it from being an issue in the Presidential campaign, and that is the passage of a free coinage bill by the next Congress and its approval by the President. In every State Convention held this year it has been given the most prominent plank in the platform. The Democrats of Kentucky, Iowa, Ohio, Nebraska and Colorado have unequivocally declared for free coinage. In New York the Democrats denounced the Sherman Commodity Act of 1890 as an artful hindrance of a return to free bimetallic coinage, and in Massachusetts the Democrats opposed free coinage. The Republicans in every State Convention, except that of Colorado, which met last Tuesday, declared against free coinage and in favor of the Sherman Commodity Act.

As there are thousands of Republicans in the Western States in favor of free coinage, and gold bug Democrats in the East opposed to it, it is evident, unless the question is settled by Congress at its next session, that there will be a division within the old parties on the issue next year. No self-respecting citizen of the silver producing States can support a party that does not unequivocally declare for free coinage, and if neither of the old parties do so there should be and will be a large accession to the ranks of the People's party, which is uncompromisingly in favor of the measure.

AN IRRIGATION CONVENTION.

In accordance with the request of the National Executive Committee appointed by the Salt Lake Irrigation Congress, and of a number of citizens of Nevada, Governor Colcord has issued a call for a convention to be held at Carson City on Friday, the 9th instant. It will be a mass convention, in which every resident of the State will be entitled to a seat and a hearing, and its objects are fully set forth in the call for its assembling.

The reclamation of arid lands is a question of great importance to Nevada. That it will be settled in time, as the demand for agricultural products increases, is conceded, but it is possible for Congress by friendly legislation and liberal appropriations to hasten the time. It is not unreasonable for the people of the arid region to ask that as liberal appropriations be made from the national treasury for making deserts habitable and productive as for building war vessels and improving rivers and harbors. The armored cruisers, on which millions are being spent annually, may, in this age of invention, be obsolete and useless in a few years, while every section of land won from the desert will furnish homes for several families for ever.

A RILED ORGAN.

The Enterprise exhausts its vocabulary of billingsgate in denying the allegation of the Journal that Governor Colcord was opposed to the passage of the Act creating the State Board of Assessors and Equalization. The Journal, nevertheless, reiterates the allegation, and can substantiate it by the evidence of members of the Legislature and others who were in a position to know that the Governor was opposed to the bill. The Enterprise knows that every newspaper in the State, save and except itself, opposed the passage of the Act, and that public opinion was almost unanimous against it. It should also know that abuse is not argument, and that ordinary newspapers have yet the right to express their opinions in Nevada as well as those, which, like itself, are owned by corporations.

Boulanger's Testament.

Special to the Journal.

BUSSELS, October 1.—The political testament of Boulanger was read to day at a private meeting of his friends. It says: "I shall kill myself to-morrow. I am convinced of the future of the party to which I have given my name. I am persuaded by my followers, who are so devoted and numerous, that they will bear me no anger for disappearing on account of the sorrow being so great that all work becomes impossible to me. May they continue to act against those who, in scorn of all laws, force me to die far from my country. My death is no shame to myself, but it is a shame for my proscribers, those who sought to brand a loyal soldier by the judgment of a political tribunal. I desire to recall the fact that I have many times offered to constitute myself a prisoner if they would accord to me the common law judges. This, the holders of power have always refused, and thus acquittal was not possible. In quitting life I have one regret; that I have not died on the field of battle, fighting for my country. That country at least, will permit one of its children at the moment of returning into nothingness to recall himself to the memory of all lovers of La Patrie.

The Itata Released.

Special to the Journal.

LOS ANGELES, October 1.—The Itata was released to-day upon a bond being filed in penalty of $60,000 for the vessel and a bond of like amount for her cargo of arms. E. S. Babcock and C. A. Jarretson are sureties. It is expected that the steamer will leave to-morrow for Chilli.

News of Importance From Home and Abroad.

Irish National League.

Special to the Journal.

CHICAGO, October 1.—The Convention of the Irish National League of America and societies and individuals throughout the United States and Canada, in sympathy with that organization, met to-day. Secretary Sutton, who called the convention, read the call, expressing regret at the absence, through illness, of President Fitzgerald and Vice President Martin O'Neill. Ryan of St. Louis was introduced as temporary Chairman of the convention, and he promptly launched into an address foreshadowing the policy of the organization. They were not there, Ryan said, to uphold any section or faction, but were there, he hoped, to say to people in Ireland, that when they presented a united front, then, and not until then, should they receive moral and material support of the Irish people in America. Only an aggressive movement, independent of both English parties, could command untainted aid from America. The speech was cheered throughout. On motion of Gallagher of New York a Committee on Credentials was appointed. A recess was then taken until 2 this afternoon to await the report of the Credentials Committee.

Five hundred delegates in round numbers were announced to be duly accredited, and three or four hundred present on the reassembling of the convention this afternoon at once started in to make things lively. Moriarity of Nebraska set the ball rolling with a motion to substitute M. V. Cannon as permanent Chairman instead of temporary Chairman Ryan. The vote, however, showed that Ryan had captured the convention, and Cannon withdrew from the contest. Langdon of New York threw a fresh bone of contention among the delegates by moving that the Chair appoint Committees of nine each on Resolutions, Finance, Rules and Order of Business and Constitution. McQuirk of Iowa demanded that the committees each contain a representative from every State. He was warmly seconded by Sharon of Iowa. After much discussion and an extraordinary parliamentary tangle, the convention acquiesced in the plan, and a recess was taken to afford the various delegations an opportunity to select their own members. Matthew F. Brady of Chicago eloquently drew attention to the huge portrait of Robert Emmet above the stage and argued that the delegates by consenting to its retention, assented to the principles which Emmet promulgated and died for. County government or any other temporary amelioration of Ireland's condition, was astonishing if ultimately the Irish race were to be left without a status among nations. Brady declared that Irish liberty had never been sold nor so much as impelled by a priest of the Catholic Church, and he implored that no matter what point the deliberations of the convention might lead to, that nothing should emanate which could be even tortured into a suggestion that the Irish hierarchy were not worthy of their utmost confidence.

It was announced that all the resolutions should be referred unread to the committees. The various committees were instructed to be ready to report to-morrow at 10 A. M., to which time the convention adjourned.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY.

A Gala Day at Palo Alto.

Special to the Journal.

PALO ALTO, Cal., October 1.—This morning broke bright, crisp and clear and every village, town and hamlet within a radius of fifteen miles is crowded with people from all parts of the State who have been gathering for three days past to be present at the opening exercises of the Leland Stanford University. The trains last evening were all loaded down and it was difficult for visitors to find accommodations.

A stage has been arranged at the north end of the quadrangle of the University. The spot has been beautifully decorated with evergreens, palms, pampas grass and a background of American flags very artistically arranged, and on the rear wall is hung an oil painting of Leland Stanford Jr., to whose memory the University has been erected.

At 10:30 o'clock Senator and Mrs. Stanford ascended the platform, and as they came in view of the audience there was an enthusiastic cheer, while the students for the first time expressed their college yell: "Wah hoo, wah hoo, L. S. J. U. Stanford." The hymn "We Gave Thee But Thine Own" was then sung, after which President Jordan stepped to the front and briefly introduced Senator Stanford, who was greeted with prolonged applause. Stanford spoke at some length, reviewing the progress of education and the founding of this University. He was followed by Judge James McM. Shafter, one of the trustees of the University, who made appropriate remarks.

Four hundred and forty students have been admitted to the various classes, as follows: Freshmen 280, sophomores 30, juniors 25, seniors 25, post-graduates 30, partial course 50. Of these 95 are girls. The dormitories, so far as completed, will not accommodate more than 350 pupils. The others will find lodgings in the neighborhood of the University. Fully eleven hundred applications for admission to the institution have been received and the examinations have not yet finished.

Conductor Killed.

Special to the Journal.

LA GRANDE, Or., October 1.—Conductor Plumb, of the Elgin local train to-night, caught his foot in a frog at Island City to-day and before he could extricate it the train passed over his leg, crushing it and fracturing one arm. He died in a short time.

Public Debt.

Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—The aggregate interest and non-interest bearing debt is $984,335,503, a decrease for the month of $18,823,238; cash balance, $144,987,369; decrease during the month, $15,256,420.

AN IRRIGATION CONTENTION.

Governor Colcord Issues a Call for One in Response to a Request of Leading Citizens.

The following explains itself: Hon. R. K. Colcord, DEAR SIR:—The undersigned citizens of the State of Nevada respectfully request you to call an Irrigation Convention, pursuant to the suggestion of the Congress recently held at Salt Lake, Utah, said Convention to be composed of citizens of the State who are interested in irrigation, water storage and kindred subjects, to be held at a time and place best calculated to forward the interests of our State.

THE GOVERNOR'S RESPONSE.

CARSON, Nevada, September 29.

WHEREAS, The National Executive Committee appointed by the Irrigation Congress, assembled at Salt Lake City, Utah, on the 17th of September, 1891, has requested the Governor of Nevada to call a State Irrigation Convention at an early day, with a view of obtaining, first, an endorsement of the policy adopted by such Congress, and, second, to organize every county of Nevada, so that petitions in support of the measure when introduced in Congress, may be circulated and the largest possible number of signers be obtained, and,

WHEREAS, A petition signed by numerous citizens of this State, interested in irrigation and reclamation of arid lands, has also been addressed to me, requesting the call of a Convention for the purpose of considering the questions of storage irrigation and reclamation of arid lands, and,

WHEREAS, This is a matter of supreme importance to the people of this State, upon which largely depends its population and prosperity, now,

THEREFORE, I do call a Convention at the City of Carson, Nevada, on Friday, the 9th day of October, 1891, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose;

First, Of considering the best measures to enforce the policy adopted by the Salt Lake Convention with reference to the action of the Federal Congress, and,

Second, For the purpose of considering the capabilities of the various portions of the State of Nevada, with reference to water storage, irrigation and reclamation of lands.

Third, For the purpose of selecting delegates to the Mississippi Congress to be held at Omaha, October 15th, 1891.

The Convention will be a mass Convention, composed of all those interested in the subject of water storage, irrigation or reclamation of arid lands, and a general call is hereby issued to all so interested, to attend.

The delegates from the various counties will organize after their arrival at Carson. Particular request is made that competent men from each county and section of the State should present to the Convention written articles descriptive of its resources, its facilities for water storage, its system of water rights, the prevailing system of reclamation and the extent to which such reclamation can be increased. It is the design to publish such communications later on in the report of the proceedings of the Convention.

The subject of the District Irrigation law passed by the last Legislature will also be considered and fully discussed, and measures suggested for its amendment and improvement.

It is to be hoped that the various counties will vie with each other, both in the size and intelligence of their delegations and of their careful preparation of information relating to their resources, and I trust that this Convention will, by the wisdom of its action, and in this great work of erecting a sufficient machinery by which the unanimous voice of seventeen States and Territories may be brought to bear upon National legislation.

R. K. COLCORD, Governor.

As all the business houses will be closed to-day to give proprietors and employes an opportunity to attend the District Fair at Carson, the Daily Journal will not be published to-morrow. Printers as well as other mortals, like a Jay's recreation once in a while, and it is necessary to suspend the publication of the JOURNAL for a day to give its force an opportunity to attend the Fair.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation, curative power superior to any other article. A Boston lady who knew what she wanted, and whose example is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

To Get

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me their's would last longer; that I might take it on ten days' trial; that if I did not like it I need not pay anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I knew what Hood's Sarsaparilla was. I had taken it, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other.

Hood's

When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla I was feeling real miserable, suffering a great deal with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly stand. I looked, and had for some time, like a person in consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla did me so much good that I wonder at myself sometimes, and my friends frequently speak of it." MRS. ELIZA A. GORF, 61 Terrace Street, Boston.

THE HORN CASE.
The Defendant Makes a Statement—The Jury Finds Him Not Guilty.
The trial of Thomas H. Horn, indicted for robbery was resumed in the District Court yesterday before Judge Cheney. A letter written by Horn the night of the robbery and mailed the same night, containing his daily report, was offered in evidence. The prosecution objected to the introduction of the letter on the ground of irrelevancy. It was agreed by counsel that the testimony of Lee MaLotte, as given at the last trial, be considered as evidence in this trial. It was in effect that he was Deputy Postmaster, and that letters mailed before 8 p. m. bear the post mark of that day and letters mailed later than 8 p. m. bore the post mark of the following day. The letter was admitted as to its length and the fact that a letter had been written, but its contents were ruled out.
Thomas Thomas, the first witness called, said he was in Chase's saloon the night of the robbery, and said Horn came in and was cool and collected. That was about 11:30. Defendant was dressed in a brown coat. It was about 20 minutes before the robbery.
William A. Pinkerton, Superintendent of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, was then called and testified as follows:
"I have resided in Chicago 40 years, and am one of the principals of the National Detective Agency. It is our business to detect criminals in all parts of the United States. I know the defendant and he has been in my employ several years. He was sent to Salem, Oregon, to locate a man who is supposed to be connected with the Lake Labish disaster, in the interest of the Southern Pacific Company. He was looking for a man by the name of McCabe. Horn was employed by me upon the credentials which he had. He has been a trusted employe of ours and while in our employ has been an honest and efficient employe."
In cross examination it was brought out that he was doing the work at the request of the Southern Pacific Company.
HORN'S STATEMENT.
Thomas H. Horn, the defendant, was then called and made the following statement:
"I was born in Missouri and am 31 years of age. I have worked at various occupations; I have worked on ranches and broke horses; have been a foreman on a cattle ranch; have been in the employ of the Government as an interpreter and scout and finally chief of scouts. Have spent most of my life in Arizona and Old Mexico. I worked for the Chiricahua Cattle Company, Ming & Jones, Bert Dunlop and at the San Carlos reservation, for the Government. As a scout I was under General Crook and afterward under General Miles. I was in the Apache war and was present at the time of and assisted in the capture of Geronimo. I acted as interpreter during the surrender of Geronimo. I had charge of 100 scouts. I went to Oregon the 3d of December last year and remained there until the 4th of April, 1891, when I received instructions to go to Truckee to look up this man McCabe, who was supposed to be connected with the Lake Labish disaster. While in Salem in order to get in with the men I was hunting, I commenced work by the day on a swamp ditch and worked right along with the men in order to gain their confidence. They were all ex-convicts. I slept with them and ate with them.
"I stopped off at Truckee two days and then came to Reno. I registered at the Palace Hotel as Thomas Hale and hunted me up a good room, and after I was settled I began to look up my man. I visited all the saloons and gambling places, played at a number of places and lost money. I became acquainted with a man by the name of Maxey Sweeney, who took me around. I staked him several times and as he always lost, I got tired of it. The evening of the robbery I was around town, playing at the games and visiting the saloons. I went down to Chase's to see if I could find the man McCabe. Went up to my room and wrote my customary daily report to the Agency at Denver, and then went down to mail it. After I had mailed it and was on the corner by the bank, I heard the train whistle blow and concluded I would have to get a move on me. I hurried to my room, packed my things, went to the train and boarded it. I was there surrounded by a number of men, one of whom presented a pistol at my face and told me to hold my hands up, which I did. I was arrested or taken off the train and nippers placed upon my wrists. I was then taken to the Justice's Court-room and searched, and conducted to the jail. The men who took me there wanted me to give up the rest of my money and say who my pal was. I told them I had no money but my own and had not committed any crime and had nothing to say."
There was some discussion as to whether Horn be allowed to state if he had other money than that found upon him. Attorney Baker asked the question:
"Did you have any money in Washington, or Oregon or Denver?"
Woodburn objected and the objection was sustained by the Court. Defense excepted to the ruling. The defendant testified as to the amount of money he had in his possession at different times and it tallied with what was found on his person.
In cross-examination Mr. Woodburn confessed himself to impeaching the defendant and the way in which he conducted the cross-examination, resulted in several tilts between counsel.
The defense objected to the introduction of certain testimony, and the contents of certain notebooks, but was overruled by the Court.
The cross-examination was somewhat lengthy, and the efforts of Mr. Woodburn to prove Horn a railroad spotter, had not sufficient foundation to have the desired effect. He based the spotter business on the fact that a memorandum in cipher had been found in Horn's possession. On the re-direct examination Horn testified that it was the instruction of the Agency to those operatives who are in the employ of or on railroad business, to note any irregularities that might occur under their observations. He then explained clearly and fully the meaning of the cipher which Mr. Woodburn had laid so much stress upon.

Mr. Fraser, the Assistant Superintendent of the Pinkerton Agency, was then called and explained the details of the business, and stated that Horn was sent out here on particular business to locate McCabe, and a letter and telegram to that effect were offered in evidence.
After the introduction of some further testimony, the State, in rebuttal, recalled S. W. Upson, for the purpose of impeaching the testimony of J. S. Miller.
The case was then closed, and the defense expressed a willingness to submit it without argument, to which the State finally assented. The Judge instructed the jury and they were sworn and retired for deliberation.
In a few minutes the jury found a verdict of "not guilty," and Thomas H. Horn was discharged and his bondsmen released.
Thus ends a remarkable case, resulting from one of the most daring and well executed robberies ever perpetrated on the coast.
BECK VS. BOODLE
Ahead in the Second Round.
EDITOR JOURNAL:—Possibly it may be of interest to some of your many readers to know how my second round with the boodlers came out. Briefly stated then, I may say that I am a free citizen again. To-day the Police Court virtually decided that to hit a boodler on the snout is no offense against the laws of the State. It will be remembered that for more than a week I have been regarded as a criminal, and liable to dire punishment for causing an infraction of the laws governing the people of the commonwealth of Nevada.
Over a week ago I was arrested on a serious charge, to-wit: assault and battery upon the person of one M. J. Curtis. Being taken before the Magistrate I pleaded not guilty, and asked, as was my right, for an early trial by a jury of my countrymen. The cause was set for trial last week, but could not be heard, and then went over until last Monday. When I then appeared for trial I was informed by the Magistrate that the complaining witness had, previous to that time, filed with the Court an acknowledgment that he had received satisfaction, and that he refused to further prosecute the case. Now, I want to state that I never gave him anything or promised anything, nor allowed or authorized any of my friends to give anything to stop hostilities. At the same time I have no doubt but that a small sum of money, or a suit of clothes, or a ham, or fitch of bacon would have been sufficient. I never offered either.
Well, as I was going to tell you, the final hour for a hearing was fixed at 1 o'clock to-day, but I found no one to prosecute me, notwithstanding I had tried all week to get the boodlers to show their hands. At 12:30 o'clock I received a message by wire from Verdi saying "Curtis and Hyman are here." I then concluded to go into court and move a dismissal of the charge, and as my attorneys showed plainly to the Magistrate that the prosecution was malicious and founded on perjury the Court dismissed the cause and taxed all the costs to the complaining witness. Thus ended the second round of "Beck vs. Boodle."
I must here beg pardon of you and the public for the apparent egotism. I never knew until recently that I amounted to so much. Recently it has come to my knowledge that I am "in the way" quite too often. To those who have given attention to public matters of import to our county, it must be evident that this unpleasantness between Curtis and I is not strictly a personal matter. On his own account Curtis would not have assaulted me at the fair grounds, for I am ready and able at any time to show that he begun the fracas which ended in disaster to him. He then, without consulting the ring, rushed off to the Police Court for revenge and legal snave for his mug. Of course, as soon as the other members of the combine learned what was done, Curtis was rebuked for bad judgment in getting into court against Old Beck. The result was that every mulligrub of the outfit agreed that the suit should be withdrawn, and dismissed it was, as above stated, for with the aid of two able lawyers I was unable to bring the cause to a trial. When the next round is called I may not be able to respond, for I am a little groggy, though still in the ring.
H. H. Beck.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. A Plan for City Playgrounds.

City children are undoubtedly happy in their play, but I cannot watch them without sadness and a regret that the fuller pleasures of a country life will never be theirs at the time they are best fitted to enjoy them. The earnest pleading for a leaf or blossom from the flower laden tourist as, returning from his outing, he passes up the street; the eager band of merry children in pursuit of a wandering butterfly—fairly like a visitor from a strange land—tell of a formless longing for the unknown freedom of the woods and fields. What can we do to add to the joys of a youth which is all too brief? As you enter your high school, these boys and girls enter on the serious duties of life. Then follows the struggle for existence, and a severe one it usually is.

We cannot give all these children homes in the country, we cannot give them all even an outing there; but we can give them playgrounds in the city; a very little plot here and there will do. We have reserved great parks and squares which we permit them to look at and sometimes to venture on. But as playgrounds these are practically useless; they are accessible to comparatively few. A vacant building lot in the proper district is far more to the purpose. Happy is the boy who lives near one! Notice the evidences of constant use it shows, the small baseball "diamond" clearly outlined, every smooth place pitted with marble holes.

What better investment could our cities make than to purchase small plots like this at intervals throughout the city, tear down the buildings, fill up the cellars, and leave them, with no forbidding sign, open to the children. Their little feet would soon grade and harden the ground. In giving the nation's future workers such an opportunity to lay the foundation for stronger and healthier bodies and brighter wits the city would reap abundant interest on the capital invested.—Frank M. Chapman in St. Nicholas.

Honest New York Shop Girl.

A gentleman who lives in Cincinnati returned home a day or two ago after a fortnight's sojourn here deeply impressed with the honesty of the New York shop girl. On the day after his arrival in town he went into a large retail shop in Fourteenth street and made some trifling purchase. The next day he missed a pocketbook containing fifty dollars in currency. He thought that he had mislaid it in his room at the hotel, and a diligent search was made for it. He gave it up as lost, and would have dismissed the matter from his mind had not the clerk of the hotel suggested that he might possibly have left the pocketbook in some store.

The gentleman attached little importance to the suggestion, but about a week afterward he stepped into the Fourteenth street shop and laughingly asked one of the floor walkers if a pocketbook containing fifty dollars had been found there. Much to his surprise, an affirmative answer was given, and in a few seconds his property was restored to him. He learned that the saleswoman from whom he had made his purchase found the pocketbook on the counter after he had departed and promptly turned it in at the office.

"Are all your clerks as honest as that?" asked the Cincinnati man.

"Certainly," replied the superintendent of the store. "We have never yet failed to return property lost in this store to claimants who could prove their right to it."

"Well, that beats some towns," said the westerner. "Here's a 'V' for the saleswoman."—New York Times.

Those Wires on the Bridge.

Thousands of people cross the bridge every day, but comparatively few of them know much about the wires that are trained across the big structure. They are there in great numbers and of almost endless variety. Their resting place is on the girders. Through them countless messages—telephonic and telegraphic—are transmitted at all hours of the day and night.

Some of them resemble ropes, but they are not, for each contains 600 telephone wires. Of these there are five. Besides them are many other black, snakelike strands, which are other means of communication with Brooklyn and points beyond. Of course, nearly everybody is aware that the land ends of the Atlantic cables of the Commercial company also cross the bridge, but their location is generally misunderstood. They are securely fastened to the under side of the promenade flooring, in plain view of passengers on the trains.—New York Herald.

Magnificent Tobacco Crop.

Good news for smokers comes from Havana. It is expected by the best authorities on the subject there that the present tobacco crop will even surpass that of ten years ago in quality and quantity. It promises, moreover, to "cure" early enough to enable it to be sampled by July. The interior harvests of the last nine years—with the exception of 1898, which was a comparatively good one—had all been late in arriving. For instance, that of 1890, in spite of the most careful treatment, could not be got to "cure" fit for smoking until last January. The crop is roughly estimated at a quarter of a million bales, each of 100 pounds weight.—London Telegraph

Flannel Shirt, No Waistcoat.

The washable waistcoats that come in many well chosen designs will be worn with the coats and trousers. They may be worn with the chevot, but not the flannel shirts. If it is so warm that the flannel shirt must be donned for comfort it is too warm to add the weight of the dressy waistcoat.—Clothing and Furnisher.

No Bids for the House.

The ancient house at Jedburgh, in which Mary Queen of Scots resided for several weeks during her visit to the border counties in the autumn of 1560, was offered for sale at Edinburgh last week, but there were no bids for the quaint and interesting dwelling, which was reserved at £2,300.—London Truth.

Bachelor Life in Singapore.

Many of the white men in Singapore keep bachelor quarters, and one description of a bachelor's bungalow will suffice for all. Two young Englishmen have a one story rambling house among some coconut palms, covering a lot of ground and open on every side. Enter in and sit. Leave your pith helmet at the door, and one of the bachelors says: "Now, wouldn't you take a gin fizz? It's very nice." And before the visitor can answer he calls out, "Boy!" when from some unforeseen screen or crack a China boy appears and gets the order.

In a few moments he returns with a long glass filled with "gin fizz" and powdered ice, and then the host goes on and asks the guest to take champagne and port and sherry and cognac and a julep, and—I can't go on. There were more, but I really forget the names.

This is hospitality in the orient. There are sixteen servants for these two white boys, and such attendance and obsequiousness spoils them, let alone the question of ruining their stomachs by so many liquor concoctions. — Toronto Globe.

An Introduction to Samuel Rogers.

On a certain day we went to call at Mrs. Procter's with our father. We found an old man standing in the middle of the room, taking leave of his hostess, nodding his head—he was a little like a Chinese mandarin with an ivory face. His expression never changed, but seemed quite fixed. He knew my father and spoke to him and to us, too, still in this odd, fixed way. Then he looked at my sister. "My little girl," he said to her, "will you come and live with me? You shall be as happy as the day is long, you shall have a white pony to ride and feed upon red currant jelly." This prospect was so alarming and unexpected that the poor little girl suddenly blushed up and burst into tears. The old man was Mr. Samuel Rogers, but happily he did not see her cry, for he was already on his way to the door.—Mrs. Ritchie in Macmillan's Magazine.

A Narrow Escape.

A flash of lightning struck a beautiful young lady at a southern watering place, but, strange to say, without any disastrous consequences. The lightning first grazed the well padded bodice of the young lady, slipped over the upholstered hips, tore off a plait of false hair which hung down her back, entered the "improver" and glided from the false calves into the heels of her high boots, through which it passed into the ground. Thus the fair maiden escaped all injury, and only her artificial teeth chattered through fright at the suddenness of the thing.—Berliner Tageblatt.

Storks never seem to have been common in Italy. Apparently the two great routes of migration are by Spain and north Africa, or Turkey, Asia Minor and Palestine, and though a few travel over Italy none stay there to nest.

A Door in an Old Church.

Now and then a small door may be seen high up in the piers that divide the nave from the chancel. This is the door that once gave access from the winding stair within the pier to the footway on the top of the screen with which most churches were once provided. When screens were found inconvenient and were removed, these doors were left. Ross church, Herefordshire, has a noticeable example. Hincley church, Leicestershire, has another.—Gentleman's Magazine
